

Trisha Volpe, JD

Trisha Volpe is a ThemeVision Consultant and attorney in Barnes & Thornburg LLP's Litigation Department in the Minneapolis office.

Leveraging her award-winning broadcast journalism experience with her litigation experience, Ms. Volpe provides clients with a unique skillset and perspective on their litigation and communication needs in a wide range of industries.

Ms. Volpe's practice focuses on providing strategic legal communications counsel and training in legal and other adversarial contexts. She helps clients navigate complex communications issues, developing case-specific legal communications strategies for all stages of the litigation, from developing themes to preparing witnesses and designing tools to deliver themes and messages effectively at trial and in other adversarial contexts. Ms. Volpe also helps develop jury research strategies for mock trials. She is an attorney and communications professional who understands the power of strategic communication in high stakes litigation.

Ms. Volpe presents regularly to local and national audiences on media issues, the law and effective communication and often teaches continuing legal education classes to attorneys on issues where the media, effective communication and the law intersect. She has also been an adjunct faculty member for the Mitchell Hamline School of Law Expert Witness Training Academy.

As an Emmy-award winning journalist, Ms. Volpe has worked in newsrooms in the U.S. and Canada. She specialized in investigative reporting, enterprise reporting and in-depth storytelling involving complex and important issues affecting the community. While a reporter, Ms. Volpe covered many high-profile criminal and civil cases and provided depth and perspective to legal issues in the news.

Ms. Volpe earned her Bachelor of Journalism degree with highest honors from Carleton University in Ottawa, Canada and graduated summa cum laude from William Mitchell College of Law in St. Paul, Minnesota.
